

$8,000,000 PLANT BUILT TO PROVIDE TEMPERANCE DRINK

With the prohibition ban slammed down hard on many States of the nation and on the whole fighting organization by orders by Secretaries Baker and Daniels, forbidding any man in the United States uniform, either of the army or navy, to drink intoxicating liquors, the brewing interests have turned to the problem of providing beverages that will come within the law.

One of the most notable examples of this effort is the erection of an $8,000,000 plant in St. Louis by the Anheuser-Busch company for the manufacture of Bevo, the temperance drink. The plant, which has just been completed, represents the very latest thing in the scientific development of the brewing industry.

PLUCKY WOMAN PREVENTS NEGRO SNATCHING PURSE

Mrs. Mary Hoorman, of 2407 First street northwest, today is suffering from the shock of an experience yesterday with a negro footpad who attempted to rob her of a handbag at North Capitol and Bryant streets.

Mrs. Hoorman proved herself plucky. When the negro seized her handbag, she fought and screamed. Passers-by ran to her assistance, and the snatcher fled.

James Ferguson, 422 Fifth street southeast, was held up and robbed at the point of a pistol by two negro highwaymen early today on New York avenue, between Fourth and Fifth streets. One of the men thrust a pistol in Ferguson's face, threatening to shoot him if he made an outcry. Ferguson permitted them to search him. After taking his watch, valued at $250, the negroes fled.

A half hour's nap cost Columbus Goings, 413 Ridge street northwest, just $100. He fell asleep in his automobile, and when he awakened he found that some one had stolen his wallet and a $50 Liberty bond.

RED CROSS DRIVE AT B. F. KEITH'S TO INCLUDE AUCTION

Flushed with the triumph of being first among the nation's playhouses in the amount of Liberty Bonds sold during the recent campaign, B. F. Keith's Theater today is preparing to do its utmost in behalf of the Red Cross drive, which begins here Monday.

Frederic J. Haskin, who auctioned Liberty bonds, will appear at the theater tonight to plead for the cause of the Red Cross. Features planned for the week to make the show folks by surprise are a Chinese auction, a Red Cross bazaar, a turkey raffle, and a plugging bee. Well-known speakers will explain the work of the Red Cross and the necessity of a continuance of its service to soldiers and civilians back of the battle lines.

President Wilson has presented for the turkey raffle the bird that was sent to him from New Orleans, where $10,000 was obtained for a charitable purpose by selling the turkey to the highest bidder in the Southern city. The Chinese auction promises to prove unique, according to those in charge of its features. From private and commercial sources valuable goods have been donated for this auction. Among the lot is a bear rug, valued at $150, donated by Mr. Charles D. Walcott. There will also be sold at this auction a mother-of-pearl ostrich fan, given by an anonymous benefactress, and a summer robe made from souvenir scraps from the wardrobes of famous actresses, donated by Mrs. Juliette Babitt.

PRESIDENT'S SHEEP SHORN OF WOOL FOR RED CROSS DRIVE

Baa! baa! President's sheep. What have you done with your wool? The Red Cross will sell it at auction, sir. To make its war chest full.

Shivering in the cool morning breezes, shorn of their abundant wool, the President's flock of sheep stand disconsolately on the White House lawn, wondering in all probability, how much money their erstwhile hirsute adornment will raise for the Red Cross.

The ninety pounds of wool shorn from the animals will be parceled out into packages of about two pounds each, one of which will go to the governor of each state to be sold at auction. The money raised in this manner will be turned into the Red Cross war fund, for which the $100,000 drive will be under way next week.

President and Mrs. Wilson announced yesterday before leaving for New York that they wished to put this plan into operation to help the Red Cross drive. Bids for the wool will be received by telegraph, owing to the short time it is expected that a goodly sum will be raised by this auction of the wool of the President's sheep. Governors of the forty-eight States will act as auctioneers.

BLAZING FLOOR WAX CAUSES $200 DAMAGE

An overheated electric iron was the cause of a fire which consumed the washing of William A. Andrews and family at 3015 Twenty-fifth street northwest, at 10 o'clock last night. Damage estimated at $50 was caused.

When You Buy Your Own Home You Avoid Such Scenes As This

You will remember that in last Saturday's talk the famous K. C. B. dwelt upon the sentimental side of home, sweet home. This week we will give you a few practical reasons why every man who possibly can do so should own his own home.

If you buy your own home, you make a good investment, you make yourself independent, and you will know the real joy of living.

There are only a limited number of houses on the market, it is true, but real estate values are increasing daily.

Many houses may be bought for the same or slightly more than the asking price of only a few years ago. There are some houses that could not possibly be duplicated under conditions as they now exist for anywhere near the present selling prices.

Nearly every real estate agent has on his books a great er number of home-seekers by far than he has houses for sale.

Ever the

The man who is wise enough to buy his home at a reasonable figure now, will save money, and in years to come his home will increase in value.

It is a well-known fact that home owners make the best class of citizens. The reasons are obvious.

Mr. Homeowner takes more pride in his home, his family, and his neighbors than does Mr. Flat-dweller.

He takes an interest in local affairs, whether it be a Liberty Loan quota or a church picnic.

He makes stanch friends, and becomes sincerely interested in the well being of each of them.

He knows how many teeth Jones' youngest has, and when Brown is going to paint up his garage.

All of these are little things in themselves, but taken as a whole they are indications of a healthy, normal man, and he is better for it all.

Mr. Homeowner, if he does like the majority, and purchases his home on the easy payment plan, may be compelled to forego part of the passing pleasures, in fact, for a while, he will probably wear his suit a little more threadbare than formerly, but it is all in the game, and he goes in for everything that will help to clear the way until the time he can proudly and justly say, "This is my home."
